GOVERNMENT REGULATIONS FOR RESERVES

Secretary of Agriculture Gives Out Some Timely Data—Yellow Pine Trees To Be Planted in Santa Rita.

TUCSON, April 2.—The Secretary of Agriculture prescribes the number of stock that will be allowed to graze each year in the national forests. Judging by the number of applications received to date, the full quota allowed the local forests (Santa Rita, including the Whetstone mountains, the Santa Catalina and Dragon national forests) will be applied for and probably exceeded.

The charge of grazing is 35 cents for cattle and 40 cents for horses, and the stockman who grazes his stock in the national forests has several advantages over the man who grazes his stock on unsurveyed public land. For example: It is a misdemeanor to fence unsurveyed public land, and rangers will be leased. Pastures for saddle horses and beef steers are essential to the proper handling of stock. Therefore, if the man outside the national forests wishes to keep within the law he acquires title to the land he needs for pasture, either through the homestead or desert land laws, or by purchase. Either way it requires time and a certain amount of capital.

Any one grazing cattle within the national forests under permit can lease pasture at 4 cents per acre, can build drift fences where needed, and all living water is kept open. The grass is better and will keep improving, as the range is protected against overgrazing. Each year the rangers are required to make reports on the condition of the range in their respective districts. These reports are sent to the foresters, and the number of stock to be allowed permits for the next year are estimated from these reports. The forest service, in co-operation with the bureau of plant industry, have several men investigating poisonous plants within the forests. The forest service employs professional trappers to limit and kill out predatory animals that prey on livestock in the forests. The fire patrol of the rangers and forest guards during the dry seasons keep a close watch on the otherwise would spread and destroy a million acres of range. And in dozens of other ways the national forests are an advantage to the stockman.

Two thousand Rocky Mountain yellow pine trees, to be planted in the Santa Rita national forest, will arrive here from the Fort Bayard planting station at Silver City, New Mexico, about April 1. This will be the second lot to be planted in the Santa Rita forest.

A civil service examination to secure eligibles to appointment as assistant ranger of the forest service will be held in Benson, April 23 and 24. Those wishing to take the examination should apply to the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C. for blank No. 1,083, upon which to make application to take the examination.

The annual ranger meeting for the district will be held in Douglas, April 16, 17 and 18. About thirty-one rangers, covering the southeast section of Arizona, will be in attendance. At this meeting, which is nothing more than a comparison of ideas by the rangers, under the inspection of officers sent from the Forestry Department at Washington, there is expected to be a number of cattle growers, who have been invited. The annual meeting will be held at Benson next year.

Supervisor Selkirk has returned to Benson from a week's inspection in the Santa Catalina reserve and states that the new ranger station up in the mountains, about one and a half miles above the Keystone camp, is about finished. He expects to leave for the Santa Rita reserve April 1, taking with him the shipment of trees to be planted there.

THE SITUATION AND THE REMEDY

THE SITUATION IS—

1. It requires the most of our earnings for the support of ourselves and families.
2. We can not lay up much from a salary, and if we are in business for ourselves our business needs all our capital.
3. We are not likely to earn and save enough money, free from business entanglements and in shape to produce an income large enough to support a family, unless we live for many years.
4. We are not certain of living many years, nor even a few.
5. Consequently the support, education and welfare of wife and children are at hazard every day.

THE REMEDY IS—

1. A life insurance large enough to cover the needs of the family for a few years at least.
  2. This insurance should be, beyond question, safe—issued on a plan mathematically sound, and by a company financially strong.
  3. It should be on a plan that will not tie a man up to a continuance of it until death. And the cost should decrease instead of increase as he grows older.
  4. It should be on a plan that will prove an investment payable to the insured himself if he lives to old age.
  5. It should be non-forfeitable—so he may not lose what he has paid, in case he is not able to continue.
  6. It should be incontestable—so that there may be no doubt of its ultimate payment.
  7. It should be so under the control of the insured that he can borrow money on it if necessary, and change the beneficiary if desired.
  8. It should be possible for him to make it payable in annual installments, in case of death, so that his family will not lose the benefit of it by bad investments.

FOREST RANGERS WILL HAVE EXAMINATIONS

April 23 and 24 Fixed For Qualifying Rangers For Forestry Service.

The United States civil service commission has just announced that examinations will be held for the position of ranger at the supervisors' headquarters at every national forest on April 23 and 24. It is estimated that 300 more rangers will be required during the present fiscal year than were on duty last year, and eligibles to fill these vacancies will be furnished the forest service by the coming examination.

The examinations will be held in seventeen states and territories. Those in Arizona will be at the following places: Benson, Douglas, Flagstaff, Nogales, Roosevelt, Safford, Show Low, Springerville.

Applicants can secure information on the examination from the United States civil service commission at Washington, D. C., or from the forest supervisors at any of the places where examinations will be held.

Those who wish to take the examination should ask for application form 1093, a copy of the "Use Book" and a copy of "Information Regarding Employment on the National Forests." The papers in the examination will all be forwarded to the civil service commission and the results announced in due time.

Experience, a thorough knowledge of forest conditions, and a sound body, rather than book education, are the qualities sought in examining applicants who desire to become forest rangers. The man must have the ability, however, to make simple maps and write intelligent reports upon forest business connected with the position.

A ranger must be able to take care of himself and his horse in regions remote from settlement and supplies. Necessary qualifications of applicants include the knowledge of trail building, construction of cabins and the ability to ride, pack and deal tactfully with all classes of people. They must also know something of the land laws, surveying, estimating and selling timber, logging, mining and livestock business.

The applicant should be thoroughly familiar with the region of the country in which he seeks employment. In Arizona and New Mexico the ranger must know enough Spanish to conduct forest business with the Mexican users of the nation's forests. Personal equipment and horses for use in connection with the duty of a ranger are furnished by the forest service.

Working under the direction of the forest supervisors, the ranger patrols the forests to prevent fire and trespass, estimates, surveys and marks timber, supervises and performs other duties which a man thoroughly familiar with forested regions and possessing a fair education is able to fulfill.

Only those men who are at least 21 years of age, and not more than 40, of good character, temperate and in good physical condition are eligible to take the examination. The salary paid to beginners is $75 per month. Compensation runs as high as $1,400 a year for rangers who have had some experience and demonstrated their capability. Still better places are open to these men, for it is the policy of the forest service to fill vacancies in higher positions by the promotion of rangers who have proven their capacity.
